

Dear friends of Responsible Research & Innovation,

We are glad to invite you to our virtual final summit #RRI4real which will happen each forenoon from 29. September to 1. October. Have a look at the agenda at <https://fit4rri.eu/rri4real>. Due to the CoViD-19 pandemic we took the decision to move the summit from Rome into a realm where SARS-CoV-2 can't reach us - the Internet.

About this Event

The FIT4RRI consortium is organising its final summit “#RRI4real” marking the end of our three-year project. FIT4RRI brought together experts from nine European countries, who analysed and tested how to foster the real uptake of Responsible Research & Innovation and Open Science. The summit starts a new collaborative phase of shaping the future of open science and society relations.

Many delegates will come together in this virtual summit to exchange experiences and tools to support responsible and open institutional change. We look forward to enriching our project's outcomes with different perspectives and your expertise.

Through interactive formats participants will connect to various stakeholders and experience and discover good practices and strategies for RRI and Open Science. We welcome all interested parties: representatives from related projects, librarians, researchers, EC policy makers, civil society representatives and organisations, industry & business and education community.

Registration

The registration is open. If you are interested in participating our virtual final summit we are glad to welcome you online! You can register here at Eventbrite.
