

Political Science

Winter Term 2024

Jordan Tama

American University

Talk:

"Prospects for Foreign Policy Bipartisanship after the U.S. Election"

Jordan Tama specializes in the politics, institutions, and tools of U.S. foreign and national security policy making. His research has investigated polarization and bipartisanship, presidential-congressional relations, the use of economic sanctions, public and elite attitudes on foreign policy, national security strategic planning, independent commissions, and efforts to connect research and policy making on international issues.

Wednesday, November 20

4 - 6 pm in R201

At the John F. Kennedy Institute
Lansstraße 7-9, 14195 Berlin